We went on a trip to Mongolia searching for things that are independent from information technologies, electric energy and consumerism.
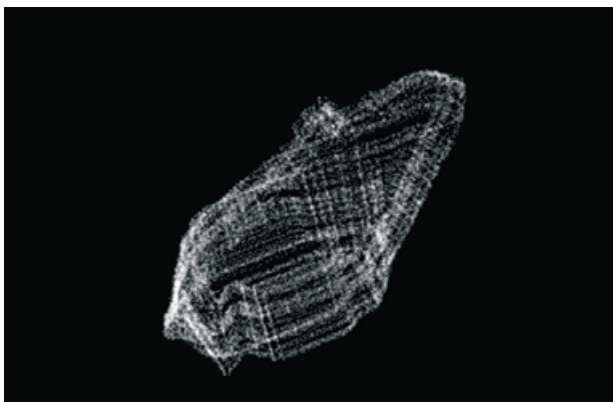

We found textures,

objects,

animals,

and other things.

Horse Skull

ANH

Horses are used for various kinds of transport. They are man's good friends and are very smart and strong animals. Their meat is a delicacy and their milk is very healthy. When you see a horse skull next to the rest of the bones in the landscape, it means that the animal has died of natural causes: hunger, illness, wolf pack attack, being lost or fatal exhaustion.

We took pictures and wrote software that would transform our photographs into 3D models.

We printed these objects with a 3D printer, and installed them in a museum. People came to see our installation.

What we did not capture was the landscape. 93
